

PRESSURE OF WATER PLANT IS DISCUSSED

Council and Water Company Representative in Heated Controversy.

TEST MADE HERE

Solons Claim Safety of City Endangered.

The question of additional water pressure here was the chief topic of discussion between city council and W. A. Dark, representative of the Ohio Water Service Co. Wednesday evening. Not only was the pressure question a prevailing one but the matter of the cost of the service was also up for bickering between the city dads and the water company.

The controversy started when Mr. Dark made a proposal to council that several different rates were available in the council's effort to obtain a reduction on cost of fire hydrants in an economy program. And then the question came: "What about additional pressure?"

ASSAULTS COUNCIL

Mr. Dark then began: "A year ago the council and the water company made a gentlemen's agreement that in return for a number of improvements at our plant an increase in the water rate would be acceptable. And now with the water company continuing its improvements the council asks for a decrease in rates in violation of that agreement. We have put in new equipment and have improved our plant at considerable cost. We have also made slashes in our expense such as cutting the payroll but our reductions have been overshadowed by lower revenue."

Frank Marion, one of the councilmen who helped conduct a test of the water pressure over a week ago, then took the floor to ask Mr. Dark if the stand-pipe at the plant could not be kept full. Mr. Marion emphatically continued: "If we have to sacrifice the safety of Circleville for a lower rate then I believe we should take the chance on your getting paid for your service. If the stand-pipe at your plant was kept full instead of about 25 feet from the top, additional water pressure here would be ascertained." Mr. Dark said that a full tank would mean about 10 pounds additional pressure.

DROPS 20 POUNDS

At the present time, according to city officials, pressure at the fire station early in the morning is approximately 60 pounds. At about noon the pressure is down to 45 and sometimes to 40 pounds and the entire afternoon finds this condition prevailing. Fire Chief Talmer Wise points out that if the 60 pound pressure could be maintained at all times no fear of trouble through lack of water supply for fires would be held.

A test of the pressure was made at the hydrant near the Home and Hospital last Tuesday, July 26. This main, off S. Scioto-st., is one of the largest in the city and with only two small lines of hose operating from the fire department's pumper the pressure was reduced between 10 and 15 pounds in a very short time.

OHIO DEMANDS OVER MILLION FROM GAS CO.

Bettman Names Columbus Gas Co. in $1,100,000 Explosion Suit.

BLAMES GAS MAIN

Action Started in Franklin-co Court.

COLUMBUS, Aug. 4.—A $1,100,000 damage suit, a direct outcome of the state office building explosion here April 14 when 10 persons were killed and scores injured when the $6,000,000 building was wrecked by a gas blast, was filed in common pleas court here today by the State of Ohio against the Columbus Gas and Fuel Company.

Attorney General Gilbert Bettman, in filing the claim on behalf of the state, alleged that the disastrous explosion was due to leaking gas in the pipes of the Columbus company, under the virtually completed new structure.

BLAMES LEAKING PIPE

In his petition to the court, the attorney general alleged that the company maintained a high pressure main under the east sidewalk of Scioto Boulevard immediately adjacent to the state office building and that, because of faulty construction of the main, gas leaks developed so that gas percolated into the sub-basement of the structure where it accumulated and subsequently exploded, wrecking the structure.

Bettman further charged that the company was negligent in construction the main in violation of the terms of its franchise ordinance which required an inner and outer pipe with vents to permit escaping gas to reach the air without creating dangerous conditions.

The pipe, as constructed, was alleged by Bettman to have a single pipe, with welded joints. The state claimed the defective construction resulted in the leaks which caused the disaster.

MUST PAY RENTS

Bettman's petition recited in detail the damage to the office building structure. The attorney general alleged that a large undetermined sum will be lost by the state because of having to pay rent for outside offices during the time necessary to restore and complete the building.

Veterans Remain True Americans As They Break Camp at Johnstown.

COLUMBUS, Aug. 4.—Efforts to assist homeward bound bonus marchers through Ohio were started today by Governor George White and Adjutant General Frank D. Henderson.

Captain Harley Johnson, Ohio National Guard officer stationed at St. Clairsville, was instructed to assemble stragglers into groups for transportation in state owned trucks.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Aug. 4.—The bonus army was on the road again today.

Peacefully, weary from miles of travel and sleepless days and nights. They struck their shabby tents in Pennsylvania's cool hills and kept their promise to Mayor Eddie McClosky of Johnstown, to demobilize.

The first of their tattered ranks clattered out of Johnstown's railroad yards before dawn on Baltimore and Ohio trains, 356 marchers in five coaches, bound for Chicago, (Continued on Page Three).

BULL MARKET COSTS BEARS

Seven Billions Added To Values of All Shares In Three Weeks.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—The "baby" bull market of the last three weeks, adding more than seven billion dollars to the value of all shares listed on the New York stock exchange, has cost the Big Wall-st. bears several of the many millions in profits they have taken out of the market in the last two and a half years.

The ranks of the big ten bears was split at the time of the senate's investigation into the stock market. Two or three of the group cashed in their profits, made on the short side, and stepped to the sidelines, or turned bulls.

The others have remained true to their cause, and have stubbornly resisted the present advance, which some of their converted brethren are engineering. The result has been a loss of millions, estimated anywhere from 10 to 25, of the profits of these die-hard bears.

The advance has been sharpest in those issues in which the big bears have been the most active. American Telephone, in which several bears are known to be short as in investment, has climbed more than $27 a share since early in July.

Stonerock and Eby are both on parole from Ohio penal institutions.

PAUL HERBERT SPEAKS TODAY

"Soft-Peddling" Thing of Past State Commander Emphatically Says.

GATHER IN TOLEDO

"It's Time Veterans Were Paid," He Says.

COLUMBUS, Aug. 4.—Declaring that the bonus issue will not be "soft-peddled" any longer, State Commander Paul Herbert, of the American Legion, today stated that the Ohio Legion will demand immediate payment of the adjusted compensation certificates at its coming convention in Toledo 10 days hence, Aug. 14, 15 and 16.

In an exclusive interview with the International News Service, the militant legion leader estimated that payment of the bonus would put $2,000,000,000 in circulation and that ex-soldiers in the Buckeye State would receive approximately $150,000,000 of that huge sum.

SOFT-PEADED

Saying the bonus issue had been "soft-peddled" for two years now, Herbert predicted that a resolution, demanding the immediate payment of the bonus from Congress, will be adopted.

"We will draft a memorial calling upon national officers of the Legion to exert every effort to have Congress pass a measure to provide funds for the payment of the world war veterans," he said.

"It's time they were paid," he emphasized.

Behind Herbert's statements were seen the successful efforts of politicians for two years hand-running to prevent the ex-soldiers from having a voice on the bonus question. It is known that pressure has been exerted to keep discussion of the bonus from the convention floor at other Legion meetings.

President Herbert himself made a special trip to Detroit at the national legion convention last September to stop a threatened stampede.

TROOPS SAVE MINERS FROM BLOODY SIEGE

79 Men and One Woman Taken from Shaft as 5,000 Irate Men Run

SEVERAL SERIOUS

Thrilling Stories of Escapes Are Told.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Aug. 4.—National Guard troops early today rescued 79 men and one woman from the Dixie Bee coal mine where they had withstood a bloody siege of 41 hours.

Frantic with thirst and hunger, the beleaguered men and the lone woman, Mrs. Dorothy Thompson, 27, were liberated by detachments of the state militia who drove to the mine entrance in trucks.

With the approach of the troops, the 5,000 union miners, who had the bloody siege, retreated into the adjacent corn-fields and brush.

ONE IS DYING

Four wounded non-taken miners, who had lain in agony within the mine throughout the prolonged gun battle, were rushed to St. Anthony's hospital here, where one of them was reported dying. Mrs. Thompson was also brought to the hospital in an ambulance for medical examination.

The Dixie Bee mine area, located at Pimento 12 miles south of here, resembled a shell-torn battlefield when the troops, summoned by the scene under a proclamation of martial law, lifted the siege, which already cost one life and wounded at least eight men wounded.

The mine buildings were destroyed and partially wrecked. Down were automobiles in the mine shaft, and the scene was one of testing to the fury of the

STORIES RELAYED

Dramatic stories of last night's rescues fell from the lips of the woman and the men who were making their last stand in the lower room and engine house where soldiers arrived at the mine from their desperate plight.

"If the troops hadn't come, all of us would have been dead long since," said the woman.

A detachment of soldiers from Company B of the 13th Infantry was the first to enter the mine. The haggard and weary black miners, nearly crazed from thirst, rushed up to their rescuers, screaming:

"Water! Water! Do you have water?"

The guardsman passed their canteens around and the miners eagerly drank.

"I've been drinking water from the boilers," one of them said, "and I feel rusty."

Mrs. Thompson, wife of Herman Thompson, a barn boss, was carried out of an empty boiler.

Audience at Cliftona Theatre Taken Behind Scenes During Action

Hollywood came to Circleville, yesterday and today, when Don O. Newland, director of The Herald's two-reel comedy production, "Pickaway-co's Hero," took the audience at the Cliftona theater behind the scenes and showed how motion pictures are made.

The stage of the theater was transformed into a set with glaring Kleig lights, cameras, scenic beauty and all those things that are required to produce that movie atmosphere. Even the director did not forget that he was the director, because he used all the expressions and gave orders in typical directorial fashion as is done on the lots and sets in the studios in Hollywood.

The audience received a thrill when the director ordered "Lights" turned toward the spectators and started camera work. He warned gentlemen, who were present with other men's wives to leave the theater, for startling disclosures would probably be made when the film is shown next Wednesday.

OHIO DEMANDS OVER MILLION FROM GAS CO.

Bettman Names Columbus Gas Co. in $1,100,000 Explosion Suit.

BLAMES GAS MAIN

Action Started in Franklin-co Court.

COLUMBUS, Aug. 4.—A $1,100,000 damage suit, a direct outcome of the state office building explosion here April 14 when 10 persons were killed and scores injured when the $6,000,000 building was wrecked by a gas blast, was filed in common pleas court here today by the State of Ohio against the Columbus Gas and Fuel Company.

Attorney General Gilbert Bettman, in filing the suit on behalf of the state, alleged that the disastrous explosion was due to leaking gas in the pipes of the Columbus company, under the virtually completed new structure.

BLAMES LEAKING PIPE

In his petition to the court, the attorney general alleged that the company maintained a high pressure main under the east sidewalk of Scioto Boulevard immediately adjacent to the state office building and that because of faulty construction of the main, gas leaks developed so that gas percolated into the sub-structure of the structure where it accumulated and subsequently exploded, wrecking the structure.

Bettman further charged that the company was negligent in construction the main in violation of the terms of its franchise ordinance which required an inner and outer pipe with vents to permit escaping gas to reach the air without creating dangerous conditions.

The pipe, as constructed, was alleged by Bettman to have a single pipe, with welded joints. The state claimed the defective construction resulted in the leaks which caused the disaster.

MUST PAY RENTS

Bettman's petition recited in detail the damage to the office building structure. The attorney general alleged that a large undetermined sum will be lost by the state because of having to pay rent for outside offices during that time necessary to restore and complete the building.

HERMAN LOWE PASSES AWAY

Former Well Known Resident Here Dies in Vincent, Brother Learns.

M. H. Lowe, E. Main-st., received a telegram Thursday morning apprising him of the death of his brother, Herman D. Lowe, aged 69, at his home in Vincent, O. The deceased man was a native of Pickaway-co and a former resident of this city. He had been ill several months.

He was the son of Palmer and Elizabeth A. Lowe, both former well known residents here.

Surviving are his widow and four children, one daughter by his first marriage, Mrs. James Germain of Muskingum-co, Elizabeth of Columbus, Herman of Chicago, Ill., and Harry H. Lowe at home.

Funeral services will be held in Vincent Saturday.

LEGION TO ASK IMMEDIATE BONUS PAYMENT

Beaten, "Army" Leaves

Veterans Remain True Americans As They Break Camp at Johnstown.

COLUMBUS, Aug. 4.—Efforts to assist homeward bound bonus marchers through Ohio were started today by Governor George White and Adjutant General Frank D. Henderson.

Captain Harley Johnson, Ohio National Guard officer stationed at St. Clairsville, was instructed to assemble stragglers into groups for transportation in state owned trucks.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Aug. 4.—The bonus army was on the road again today.

Peacefully, weary from miles of travel and sleepless days and nights. They struck their shabby tents in Pennsylvania's cool hills and kept their promise to Mayor Eddie McClosky of Johnstown, to demobilize.

The first of their tattered ranks clattered out of Johnstown's railroad yards before dawn on Baltimore and Ohio trains, 356 marchers in five coaches, bound for Chicago, (Continued on Page Three).

BULL MARKET COSTS BEARS

Seven Billions Added To Values of All Shares In Three Weeks.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—The "baby" bull market of the last three weeks, adding more than seven billion dollars to the value of all shares listed on the New York stock exchange, has cost the Big Wall-st bears several of the many millions in profits they have taken out of the market in the last two and a half years.

The ranks of the big ten bears was split at the time of the senate's investigation into the stock market. Two or three of the group cashed in their profits, made on the short side, and stepped to the sidelines, or turned bulls.

The others have remained true to their cause, and have stubbornly resisted the present advance, which some of their converted brethren are engineering. The result has been a loss of millions, estimated anywhere from 10 to 25, of the profits of these die-hard bears.

The advance has been sharpest in those issues in which the big bears have been the most active. American Telephone, in which several bears are known to be short as in investment, has climbed more than $27 a share since early in July.

PAROLED YOUTHS PLACED IN JAIL

Creed Stonerock, 23, and Jess Eby, 25, both of this city, are being held in the county jail following their arrest at 1 a. m. Thursday for investigation. The arrests were made by Parole Officer Grenell and Deputy Sheriff Miller Fissell.

Stonerock and Eby are both on parole from Ohio penal institutions.

PAUL HERBERT SPEAKS TODAY

"Soft-Peddling" Thing of Past State Commander Emphatically Says.

GATHER IN TOLEDO

"It's Time Veterans Were Paid," He Says.

COLUMBUS, Aug. 4.—Declaring that the bonus issue will not be "soft-peddled" any longer, State Commander Paul Herbert, of the American Legion, today stated that the Ohio Legion will demand immediate payment of the adjusted compensation certificates at its coming convention in Toledo 10 days hence, Aug. 14, 15 and 16.

In an exclusive interview with International News Service, the militant legion leader estimated that payment of the bonus would put $2,000,000,000 in circulation and that ex-soldiers in the Buckeye State would receive approximately $150,000,000 of that huge sum.

SOFT-PEDALED

Saying the bonus issue had been "soft-peddled" for two years now, Herbert predicted that "a resolution, demanding the immediate payment of the bonus from Congress, will be adopted."

"We will draft a memorial calling upon national officers of the Legion to exert every effort to have Congress pass a measure to provide funds for the payment of the time war veterans," he said.

"It's time they were paid," he emphasized.

Behind Herbert's statements were seen the successful efforts of politicians for two years: hand-running to prevent the ex-soldiers from having a voice on the bonus question. It is known that pressure has been exerted to keep discussion of the bonus from the convention floor at other Legion meetings.

President Hoover himself made a special trip to Detroit at the national legion convention last September to stop a threatened stampede.

WRESTLERS WIN

OLYMPIC AUDITORIUM, Los Angeles, Aug. 4.—The United States won the Olympic team championship in free style wrestling. Old glory floated triumphantly today over the wrestling arena in which Uncle Sam's grapplers in "pre game dope" hadn't been given a chance.

TO EXONERATE YOUTH

PAINESVILLE, O., Aug. 4.—Raymond Heths, 17, who allegedly confessed to police that he shot and killed his father because he had severely clubbed his mother with a sledge hammer during a domestic argument, may be exonerated it was indicated today.

RITCHIE TO STUMP

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Aug. 4.—An active speaking tour in behalf of the Democratic national ticket will be made by Governor Albert C. Ritchie.

"I expect to take the stump for Franklin D. Roosevelt the Democratic standard bearer," Ritchie declared today.

DURBIN TO APPEAL

BUCYRUS, Aug. 4.—W. W. Durbin, of Kenton, former chairman of the Democratic state executive committee and six times a delegate to Democratic national conventions today was planning a double-barreled appeal from his conviction of charges of circulating unsigned election literature.

He not only will file a motion for a new trial in the common pleas court here but he will also appeal to the appellate court at Lima, he said. The latter will probably delay final disposition of the case for months.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. John Robinson of 820 S. Maplewood-ave, announce the birth of a daughter at Berger hospital Thursday morning. The child weighed seven pounds, two ounces.

DEATH TAKES LOCAL WOMAN

Mrs. Chauncey White, Life-long Resident of City, Dies Early Thursday.

Mrs. Martha Jane White, aged 51, wife of Chauncey White, died at her home, 816 Maplewood-ave, Thursday at 4 a. m. Complications after four days' illness caused death.

She was born Jan. 2, 1881, the daughter of David and Martha Forquer Throckmorton, and was married here Nov. 4, 1905, to Chauncey White. She was a life-long resident of this city.

Besides the husband, five children, David R. of this city, Cecilia Aher of Jersey City, N. J., James W., Mark and Kathleen White; two brothers, Thomas and James Throckmorton of Columbus, and a sister, Mrs. Florence Herbert of Columbus, survive.

She was a member of St. Joseph's Catholic church. Funeral services will be Saturday at 9 a. m. at the church with Rev. Fr. E. F. Sullivan officiating with burial in St. Joseph's cemetery by the Albaugh Co.

SON SHOOTS BRUTAL MAN

Boy Saves Mother and Self By Act; Woman is Seriously Beaten However.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 4.—Seeking to save the life of his mother who was being clubbed with a sledgehammer, a 17-year-old boy today shot and killed his father at Willowick, a suburb, according to police.

The slain man was C. P. Heths, 52, a plumber. His wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Heths, was taken to Memorial hospital at Painesville in a serious condition from severe head wounds.

CONFESSION SLAYING

Police said the son of the couple, Raymond, 17, surrendered after the shooting and confessed that he had killed his father to defend his mother and himself.

Police Chief John Polly who recorded the admissions of the boy, quoted Raymond as saying that his father had been threatening to kill his mother, two sisters and a brother.

MAN 'COOKED' DEAD

CEDARVILLE, Aug. 4.—William Shoemaker, 36, employee of the Hagar Board and Paper Co., was literally cooked to death today when he fell onto a straw conveyor and was carried into a steaming vat where the temperature was 240 degrees.

A fellow workman, Ray Littler, discovering the body, became temporarily crazed and had to be restrained from jumping into the vat himself, it was reported.

TAX RATE CUT

COLUMBUS, Aug. 4.—The county budget commission today had handed Columbus taxpayers a tax melon. In fixing the tax rate for next year, the commission lowered it three cents to 214 on each $100 worth of taxable property. A further three cent cut was probable.

TROOPS SAVE MINERS FROM BLOODY SIEGE

79 Men and One Woman Taken from Shaft as 5,000irate Men Run SEVERAL SERIOUS

Thrilling Stories of Escapes Are Told.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Aug. 4.—National Guard troops early today rescued 79 men and one woman from the Dixie Bee coal mine where they had withstood a bloody siege of 41 hours.

Frantic with thirst and hunger, the beleaguered men and the lone woman, Mrs. Dorothy Thompson, 27, were liberated by detachments of the state militia who drove up to the mine entrance in trucks.

With the approach of the troops, the 5,000 union miners, who laid the bloody siege, retreated into the adjacent corn-fields and underbrush.

ONE IS DYING

Four wounded non-union miners, who had lain in agony within the mine throughout the prolonged gun battle, were rushed to St. Anthony's hospital here, where one of them was reported dying. Mrs. Thompson was also brought to the hospital in an ambulance for medical examination.

The Dixie Bee mine area, located at Fiminto 12 miles south of here, resembled a shell-torn battlefield when the troops, summoned to the scene under a proclamation of martial law, lifted the siege, which has already cost one life and left at least eight men wounded.

The mine buildings and nearby workers' dwellings were bullet-riddled and partially wrecked. Winding roads were shattered and parked automobiles in the vicinity were perforated with bullet holes, attesting to the fury of the battle.

STORIES RELATED

Dramatic stories of hair-raising rescues fell from the lips of the woman and the men who were making their last stand in the boiler room and engine house when the soldiers arrived to snatch them from their desperate plight.

"If the troopers hadn't come, all of us would have been dead before sunrise," one of the miners said. A detachment of soldiers from Company B of the 151st Infantry was the first to enter the beleaguered mine. The haggard and soot-black miners, nearly crazed from thirst, rushed up to their rescuers, screaming: "Water! Water! Do you have water?"

The guardsmen passed their canteens around and the miners eagerly drank. "I've been drinking water from the boilers," one of them said, "and I feel rusty."

MANY ASPIRE TO KEYNOTE HONORS

COLUMBUS, Aug. 4.—Ohio's "favorite son" candidates at the Democratic national convention today were engaged in a silent but nevertheless fervent scramble for the honor of being the "keynote" speaker at the rally here August 20, when Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, will deliver his opening address in his midwest campaign for election to the presidency.

They represented the same men, who five weeks ago at the Chicago convention, were part of the "stop Roosevelt" bloc either by choice or through circumstance.

They were Gov. George White, ex-governor James Cox, U. S. Senator Robert Bulkley and ex-secretary of War Newton D. Baker. All would like the honor of delivering the "keynote" address, it was learned.

MRS. MORROW WILL CARE FOR DAUGHTER

ENGLEWOOD, N. J., Aug. 4.—Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, widow of the late senator, today took charge of caring for her daughter, Mrs. Anne Morrow Lindbergh, who this month expected to become a mother for the second time.

Just returned from a European trip on which she was accompanied by her sister, Miss Annie Cutler, Mrs. Morrow refused to discuss a report while abroad she visited the family of Violet Sharpe, the maid who ended her life after subjected to police questioning in connection with the Lindbergh baby kidnapping-murder.

White Plans 3 Courses For Legislative Group

COLUMBUS, Aug. 4.—The call for a special session of the legislature, to be issued in September, will be the signal for a truly heavy work-out for members of Ohio's house and senate, a glance at the program facing the legislature proves.

Governor White has announced that he wishes the legislators to enact three types of legislation:

First—He would have them pass a law reducing salaries of state officials and other public officers who will be elected at the November election and whose terms begin next year.

Second—He will recommend passage of legislation permitting the use of gasoline tax funds to reduce assessments against abutting property for highways constructed in past years.

Third—The governor will request legislation permitting Ohio building and loan companies to buy stock in the proposed federal home loan banks, pledge their collateral and borrow money on their bonds and mortgages.

THIRD SPECIAL

The September session will be the third special meeting of the legislators of the Buckeye state this year in response to calls issued by Governor White.

Predictions that the September session will last at least 10 days or two weeks are prevalent in state-house circles. These predictions were based upon the belief that various associations and groups of public officials and employees will send strong and more or less influential lobbyists into the legislative chambers and committee rooms in an effort to induce the legislators not to cut certain salaries, or, if it is found some reduction is imperative, to hold such reductions to the smallest amount possible.

Two "economy" committees, one appointed by Governor White and the other consisting solely of members of the Ohio senate, are co-operating in an effort to speed up the work of the coming session, so far as it relates to the reduction of salaries.

BEVIS, NICKELS LEAD
Finance Director Howard L. Bevis, Cincinnati, is chairman of the governor's committee. At the helm of the senate committee is Senator Walter C. Nickels, of New Philadelphia.

These committees are collecting information dealing with the work of officials and employees in the various state departments and bureaus and are planning to confer with state employees for the purpose of obtaining their opinions concerning proposed salary cuts. As a result of their labors, the two committees are expected to be in a position not only to advise the senate and house just how far to go in slashing salaries, but also to recommend legislative enactment designed to eliminate duplications of effort and needless activities in the operation of the various governmental agencies.

In recent years, Ohio's highway laws have been amended so that there is no longer any assessments against abutting property to finance highways, except on projects of a local nature.

These statutory changes, however, do not relieve property owners, mostly in rural territory, who were obligated in times of prosperity to pay these assessments and who are hard hit by the economic depression.

ASKS CURTAILMENT
Governor White, accordingly, is having a bill prepared authorizing the application of whatever can be saved from the highway fund, by increased efficiency and the curtailment of the less essential operations, to the reduction of these assessments for 1932 and succeeding years.

Another bill will be prepared, under the supervision of the governor, authorizing building and loan concerns to buy federal home loan bank stock.

These Ohio associations have an estimated total of about $700,000,000 of mortgages that would be acceptable as loan collateral, if they bought about $7,000,000, in home loan bank stock.

TROOPS SAVE

where the men had placed her for safety. The story she related revealed John Ross, one of the non-union workers, as the outstanding hero of the siege.

"I was in the kitchen of our home near the mine Tuesday morning," he narrated. "I was preparing dinner when all of a sudden I heard the crack of guns."

BULLETS FLEW

"Bullets began flying all around me. They broke all the windows and they splattered on the walls. 'I fell flat on the kitchen floor and lay there for some time while the firing grew hotter and hotter. Then, John Ross came crawling through the door. He picked me up and carried me into the mine, running across an open space of 100 yards under heavy fire."

"I believe I owe my life to John Ross."

The miners, in their rough and picturesque vernacular, paid tribute to the bravery of the woman.

"All that time she was in the boiler with the slugs peppering away, she never so much as let out a peep," one of the miners said. "And she went without grub and water just like the rest of us."

The long hours during which the four wounded men lay in the besieged mine without medical care caused infection and endangered their chances of survival, physicians said.

Most seriously wounded was John Fulton, who was shot in the abdomen. He was not expected to live.

The other wounded men were

FIRE ON PLANES

Lifting of the siege by the National Guard culminated a night of sniping and confusion. National Guard observation airplanes flew over the embattled area until a late hour. Major Richard Taylor, commander of the air squadron, said the besieging miners had fired on the planes.

Col Paul Seiberling, who led the 1,000 National Guard troops to the scene, ordered Major Taylor to recall the planes when the firing threatened to bring them to the ground.

After mobilizing on the campus of Indiana Normal university here, the National Guard began moving busloads of soldiers toward the mine. As a bugle sounded, all firing ceased. When the troops moved into the scene of battle, the union pickets melted away like snow and took refuge in the bushes and cornfields.

Before allowing any of the besieged miners to leave for their homes, Col. Seiberling forced them to surrender all their firearms. Soldiers patrolled all the roads in the vicinity to clear them of any threatening unionists who might be abroad.

LIVED ON TOBACCO

Mack Hauck, 73, was the oldest of the miners to undergo the ordeal of the siege. As he left the mine, he said:

"I lived 41 hours on a chaw of tobacco."

Accompanying the troops into the mine was a group of newspapermen who had been prevented from approaching the area by the union pickets. Two newspapermen, who attempted to get through the lines last night, were severely beaten and escorted from the district.

Two new Ford automobiles in which were members of the film cast, collided at the street intersection. By use of gunpowder, Director Newland created a smoke screen to give the accident realism.

WRECK AT INTERSECTION

A few minutes later, another automobile was brought to the scene by the aid of a wrecking car and overturned. More gunpowder flashes, after a car bearing members of the cast had been driven near the overturned car.

Lots of smoke for a few minutes and then out of the crash arose C. G. Chalfin, the well known Loan Company manager, playing the role of Mr. Henpeck, with scratches and bruises on his face, an automobile tire over his shoulders and his legs unsteady. He stumbled back toward the car in which he had been riding, while the crowd roared, to assist Miss Eleanor Anderson, leading lady, who also suffered injuries.

ARMY LEAVES

Indiana, California and way points.

The big St. Louis contingent will pull out early today, along with veterans from other points in the middle west. By nightfall, nearly every one of the nearly 6,000 ragged men, who Saturday trekked here from Washington to build a new cantonment, will be gone.

LEAVE SINGING

Those first men that left made a picture that will be remembered for a long time. Blocked at every turn, denied refuge as a body in every state, homeless and beaten, they left Johnstown singing.

From the shabby, but still unaccountably military looking columns of this defeated army marching away from all the home it had to the railway yards, there rang out into the night "What the Hell Do We Care," and "Hinky Dinkey Parley Vous," songs of the erstwhile happy dough-boy. They were licked, and they knew it, but they certainly took it on the chin, and they held those chins up high.

There was the same solemn salute for the flag in the drab railway yards at night that there was when on June 6, those same men marched down the avenue of presidents in Washington, confident they would win their fight.

STAND AT ATTENTION

A dinky little band, recruited about town, played "The Star Spangled Banner" in the best manner it knew how, and those men ripped off their rags of caps, stood at attention, and cheered.

When they moved into the heavy foliage at the edge of the railway yard they started "There's a Long, Long Trail A-Winding," and finally, "Good-night." There were a lot of lumps in the throats of several thousand spectators who watched that last parade of the bonus army in the dead of night.

stars of Hollywood, would have found it difficult last night to make-up the cast of "Pickaway-Co's Hero" more attractively than Director Newland and his assistants, C. G. Chalfin and Mrs. Morris, perfectly groomed Miss Anderson and "Bob" Rooney. The director had the atmosphere and his cast—so all he needed to do was shoot.

A living room scene, in which Mr. Chalfin was reading and young Mr. Rooney had come to call upon Miss Anderson, was photographed after a brief rehearsal. Mr. Chalfin scored with the audience when he was directed to throw the hero out of the scene bodily, which he did to the great amusement of the audience.

ON HOLLYWOOD LOT

The audience saw all that anyone sees on a Hollywood lot in one scene from the opening shot to the final fadeout.

Other "interior" scenes to be made on the stage tonight will include the love scenes and the explosion of a trick cigar in the face of Mr. Chalfin.

The last of the interior scenes will be made on the Clifton theater stage at 9 o'clock tonight.

One of the biggest and most thrilling exterior scenes in "Pickaway-Co's Hero," was shot by Director Newland and staff at Court and Main-sts at 2:30 this afternoon as a huge crowd of persons gathered at the intersection to see movies made and to look into a real movie camera. An automobile wreck, in which all the members of the cast participated, was filmed as police kept the curious, surging crowd back from in front of the camera. With the exception of a few minutes' delay while the final scene was being taken, automobile traffic proceeded in regular course.

Director Newland and the entire cast of "Pickaway-Co's Hero" made a decided hit with the crowd.

Robert Rooney, the hero, and Mrs. Morris, stumbled from the wreck with their faces bearing many injuries, hair disheveled and not so perfectly groomed as when they had entered the car. The country flapper, Katrinka (Miss Jeanne Crowe), breezed into the scene on roller skates and took a hard fall on the street not included in the director's script—but it registered. More laughs from the crowd as a police officer rushed up to arrest the driver of the overturned car. The cub reporter, Howard White, followed the officer and got enough information for a story.

OWN LITTLE SHOW

Director Newland staged his own little show preliminary to taking the scene in giving orders as to just how it should be done. He went through the antics of the country flapper and wobbled from the wreck with dilated eyes and bearing an automobile tire across his shoulders.

It was the first time one of Circleville's thriving business centers had been turned into a Hollywood lot. Director Newland knew his job, for the crowd expressed approval. The automobile wreck scenes will probably be the biggest and best in the production.

Today has been a busy one. At 1:30 a. m. a scene in the picture of children between the ages of 5 and 12 was made at the Court House.

Records Crash; Tolan Is Victor

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 4.—The taste of victory strong on their lips, the sturdy sons of the United States gathered strength today to continue breaking Olympic games records before record-breaking crowds.

Eighty thousand persons, the largest ever to witness a track meet in the history of the world, nearly filled the Olympic stadium Wednesday to see Eddie Tolan, Michigan negro, score the first double sprinting victory for the United States in the games since the mighty Ralph Craig in 1912.

As many were expected today when Finland and America will fight it out at 1,500 meters, and probably the best 400-meter field ever gathered will face preliminary eliminations.

U. S. FAR AHEAD

The United States forged far ahead in the unofficial point score with a total of 212, with France moving into second with 68, with Germany third with 54. Italy, 42, and England, 35, came next.

Since the start of the games, out of a total of 16 track events, 13 new Olympic records have been created, five of which were world marks, and two ties with world performances.

New Olympic champions crowned with all the solemnity of ancient traditions were:

200 meters—Eddie Tolan, United States—12.2. New Olympic and new world's record for race around one turn.

110 meters high hurdles—George Saling, Jr., United States—14.6 (ties formal Olympic record. Saling's mark of 14.4 in preliminaries tied world's record and broke the Olympic record).

Discus throw—John Anderson, United States—162 feet 4 7/8 inches (new Olympic record).

Pole Vault—William Miller, United States—14 feet 1 7/8 inches (new Olympic record).

50,000 meter walk—T. Green, Great Britain—4 hours, 50 minutes 10 seconds (new Olympic record).

Cycling pursuit race—Italy.

1,000 meter scratch cycling—J. J. Van Edmond, Holland.

Team Folds—France.

MIDDLETOWN AND LIMA TO TANGLE

COLUMBUS, Aug. 4.—The junior American legion baseball teams of Lima and Middletown were to fight it out tonight for the legion championship of Ohio.

Both teams advanced into the finals, Lima by defeating Hillsboro, 7 to 5, and Middletown by beating Springfield, 8 to 7.

Their game, which will be played under the flood lights in the Red Bird stadium, will serve as a preliminary event to the Columbus-St. Paul game tonight.

BILL LEE RIGHT, RED BIRDS ON TOP

COLUMBUS, Aug. 4.—Bill Lee, youthful pitcher on the American Association Columbus ball club, today had added another win to his long string of victories by hurling the Red Birds to a 7 to 1 victory over the St. Paul saints.

Lee kept the Apostles to seven hits and garnered his fourteenth win of the season. Columbus collected 13 safeties at the expense of Russ Van Atta.

Columbus is in third place in the pennant fight, only one half game behind Indianapolis in second place.

Planes With Small Power Plants To Have Part In Air Race Events

CLEVELAND, Aug. 4.—Spectators at the National Air Races will get a thrill Wednesday, Aug. 31, when they see planes with power plants no larger than the average automobile engine hurtling around eight laps of the 10-mile course at the Cleveland Airport at well above 200 m. p. h.

This will be in the Frank R. Phillips Trophy Race, a free-for-all for planes with engines of 800 cu. in. of piston displacement or less. Clifford W. Henderson, air race managing director predicts that the event will be won at a speed of not less than 200 m. p. h. and that the competing planes will attain 250 m. p. h. on the straight-aways.

10 BEING BUILT

At least ten new racing crafts being built for the National Air Races will vie for honors in this event, according to Henderson. The Woolaroc Trophy a $2500 cash purse have been posted as the prizes in the race by Mr. Phillips, president of Phillips Petroleum Co., Bartlesville, Okla. The trophy is named after Mr. Phillips' Woolaroc ranch.

Among the new planes that doubtless will be entered in this 80-mile race is a gull-wing monoplane now under construction in the factory of Springfield Aircraft Co., Inc., Springfield, Mass. This firm is headed by Robert L. Hall, co-designer of the Gee Bee racer with which Lowell R. Bayles won the 1931 Thompson Trophy Race and later established the existing American straightaway record for landplanes of 281.75 m. p. h.

John H. Livingston, well-known racing pilot of Aurora, Ill., unquestionably will be in the Phillips race. Livingston's monocoque, which has practically been rebuilt, showed a speed of nearly 200 m. p. h. at the recent aviation meet in Omaha. He believes he can further increase the speed of the plane before the start of the National Air Races, and is bending every effort toward this end.

Other new planes in this race include two being constructed by Ben O. Howard, Chicago mail pilot, who has won so consistently with his little all-white monoplane at the air races in the last two years. The new planes, known as "Mike" and "Ike", probably will be raced as a team. They are powered with Menasco-Six engines.

WEDELL IS IN

W. J. Wedell, who won more than $5,800 in prizes at the 1931 National Air Races, is also building a ship for entry in the 800 cu. in. event with a Menasco-Six as the power plant. The plane is in the course of construction in the plant of Wedell-Williams Air Service, Inc., Patterson, La.

White Plans 3 Courses For Legislative Group

COLUMBUS, Aug. 4.—The call for a special session of the legislature, to be issued in September, will be the signal for a truly heavy work-out for members of Ohio's house and senate, a glance at the program facing the legislature proves.

Governor White has announced that he wishes the legislators to enact three types of legislation: First—He would have them pass a law reducing salaries of state officials and other public officers who will be elected at the November election and whose terms begin next year.

Second—He will recommend passage of legislation permitting the use of gasoline tax funds to reduce assessments against abutting property for highways constructed in past years.

Third—The governor will request legislation permitting Ohio building and loan companies to buy stock in the proposed federal home loan banks, pledge their collateral and borrow money on their bonds and mortgages.

THIRD SPECIAL

The September session will be the third special meeting of the legislators of the Buckeye state this year in response to calls issued by Governor White.

Predictions that the September session will last at least 10 days or two weeks are prevalent in state-house circles. These predictions were based upon the belief that various associations and groups of public officials and employees will send strong and more or less influential lobbyists into the legislative chambers and committee rooms in an effort to induce the legislators not to cut certain salaries, or, if it is found some reduction is imperative, to hold such reductions to the smallest amount possible.

Two "economy" committees, one appointed by Governor White and the other consisting solely of members of the Ohio senate, are co-operating in an effort to speed up the work of the coming session, so far as it relates to the reduction of salaries.

BEVIS, NICKELS LEAD

Finance Director Howard L. Bevis, Cincinnati, is chairman of the governor's committee. At the helm of the senate committee is Senator Walter G. Nickels, of New Philadelphia.

These committees are collecting information dealing with the work of officials and employees in the various state departments and bureaus and are planning to confer with state employees for the purpose of obtaining their opinions concerning proposed salary cuts.

As a result of their labors, the two committees are expected to be in a position not only to advise the senate and house just how far to go in slashing salaries, but also to recommend legislative enactment designed to eliminate duplications of effort and needless activities in the operation of the various governmental agencies.

In recent years, Ohio's highway laws have been amended so that there is no longer any assessments against abutting property to finance highways, except on projects of a local nature.

These statutory changes, however, do not relieve property owners, mostly in rural territory, who were obligated in times of prosperity to pay these assessments and who are hard hit by the economic depression.

ASKS CURTAILMENT

Governor White, accordingly, is having a bill prepared authorizing the application of whatever can be saved from the highway fund, by increased efficiency and the curtailment of the less essential operations, to the reduction of these assessments for 1932 and succeeding years.

Another bill will be prepared, under the supervision of the governor, authorizing building and loan concerns to buy federal home loan bank stock.

These Ohio associations have an estimated total of about $700,000,000 of mortgages that would be acceptable as loan collateral, if they bought about $7,000,000, in home loan bank stock.

where the men had placed her for safety. The story she related revealed John Ross, one of the non-union workers, as the outstanding hero of the siege.

"I was in the kitchen of our home near the mine Tuesday morning," she narrated. "I was preparing dinner when all of a sudden I heard the crack of guns.

"Bullets began flying all around me. They broke all the windows and they splattered on the walls. "I fell flat on the kitchen floor and lay there for some time while the firing grew hotter and hotter. "Then, John Ross came crawling through the door. He picked me up and carried me into the mine, running across an open space of 100 yards under heavy fire.

"I believe I owe my life to John Ross."

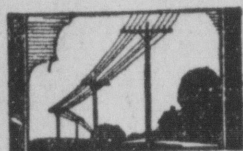

The miners, in their rough and picturesque vernacular, paid tribute to the bravery of the woman.

"All that time she was in the boiler with the slugs peppering away, she never so much as let out a peep," one of the miners said. "And she went without grub and water just like the rest of us."

The long hours during which the four wounded men lay in the besieged mine without medical care caused infection and endangered their chances of survival, physicians said.

Most seriously wounded was John Fulton, who was shot in the abdomen. He was not expected to live.

The other wounded men were

Don't Gamble With Your Time
—TELEPHONE FIRST!

Don't waste your time in making uncertain trips. You may be disappointed when you get there. Always telephone before you start out. You'll find it will save you much—in gasoline, time and energy.

After all, it is your own fault if you arrive somewhere only to find that people are gone—or busy with someone who has telephoned. If you haven't a telephone, by all means have one installed today. It will pay you big dividends in time, money and energy saved. Just call our office and we'll be glad to make all arrangements.

ARMY LEAVES

Indiana, California and way points.

The big St. Louis contingent will pull out early today, along with veterans from other points in the middle west. By nightfall, nearly every one of the nearly 6,000 ragged men, who Saturday trekked here from Washington to build a new cantonment, will be gone.

LEAVE SINGING

Those first men that left made a picture that will be remembered for a long time. Blocked at every turn, denied refuge as a body in every state, homeless and beaten, they left Johnston singing.

From the shabby, but still unaccountably military looking columns of this defeated army marching away from all the home it had to the railway yards, there rang out into the night "What the Hell Do We Care," and "Hinky Dinky Parley Vous," songs of the erstwhile happy dough-boy. They were licked, and they knew it, but they certainly took it on the chin, and they held those chins up high.

There was the same solemn salute for the flag in the drab railway yards at night that there was when on June 6, those same men marched down the avenue of presidents in Washington, confident they would win their fight.

STAND AT ATTENTION

A dinky little band, recruited about town, played "The Star Spangled Banner" in the best manner it knew how, and those men ripped off their rags of caps, stood at attention, and cheered.

When they moved into the heavy foliage at the edge of the railway yard they started "There's a Long, Long Trail A-winding," and finally, "Good-night." There were a lot of lumps in the throats of several thousand spectators who watched that last parade of the bonus army in the dead of night.

MECCA FOR SUN'S ECLIPSE
FRYEBURG, Me.—This town, in the foothills of the White Mountains, is going to be the world's center for observing the total eclipse of the sun August 31. Daniel Webster taught school here.

PAUPER HAD $14,000
HAMILTON, Ont.—An estate of $14,000 was left by Obadiah Markle, buried as a pauper and long supported by charity, it was revealed when papers were filed in Surrogate Court to settle his affairs.

CITY TO ASK

July. The report was received by city council.

July, the first month under Miss Kirchofer, doubled the receipts of the previous month of $531.30.

An ordinance transferring $2,000 from the auto license tax fund to the street maintenance and repair fund was passed under suspension of rules after its first reading Wednesday evening. The money will be used for labor by the city service director.

Mayor B. T. Hedges reported to city council Wednesday evening that he had collected fines of $31.82 and licenses of $6 during July.

HOLLYWOOD

stars of Hollywood, would have found it difficult last night to make-up the cast of "Pickaway-co's Hero" more attractively than Director Newland and his assistants, C. G. Chalfin and Mrs. Morris, perfectly groomed Miss Anderson and "Bob" Rooney. The director had the atmosphere and his cast—so all he needed to do was shoot.

A living room scene, in which Mr. Chalfin was reading and young Mr. Rooney had come to call upon Miss Anderson, was photographed after a brief rehearsal. Mr. Chalfin scored with the audience when he was directed to throw the hero out of the scene bodily, which he did to the great amusement of the audience.

ON HOLLYWOOD LOT

The audience saw all that anyone sees on a Hollywood lot in one scene from the opening shot to the final fadeout.

Other "interior" scenes to be made on the stage tonight will include the love scenes and the explosion of a trick cigar in the face of Mr. Chalfin.

The last of the interior scenes will be made on the Cliftona theater stage at 9 o'clock tonight.

One of the biggest and most thrilling exterior scenes in "Pickaway-co's Hero," was shot by Director Newland and staff at Court and Main-sts at 2:30 this afternoon as a huge crowd of persons gathered at the intersection to see movies made and to look into a real movie camera. An automobile wreck, in which all the members of the cast participated, was filmed as police kept the curious, surging crowd back from in front of the camera. With the exception of a few minutes' delay while the final scene was being taken, automobile traffic proceeded in regular course.

Director Newland and the entire cast of "Pickaway-co's Hero" made a decided hit with the crowd.

WRECK AT INTERSECTION

Two new Ford automobiles in which were members of the film cast, collided at the street intersection. By use of gunpowder, Director Newland created a smoke screen to give the accident realism.

A few minutes later, another automobile was brought to the scene by the aid of a wrecking car and overturned. More gunpowder flashes, after a car bearing members of the cast had been driven near the overturned car.

Lots of smoke for a few minutes and then out of the crash arose C. G. Chalfin, the well known Loan Company manager, playing the role of Mr. Henpeck, with scratches and bruises on his face, an automobile tire over his shoulders and his legs unsteady.

He stumbled back toward the car in which he had been riding, while the crowd roared, to assist Miss Eleanor Anderson, leading lady, who also suffered injuries.

Robert Rooney, the hero, and Mrs. Morris, stumbled from the wreck with their faces bearing many injuries, hair disheveled and not so perfectly groomed as when they had entered the car. The country flapper, Katrinka (Miss Jeanne Crowe), breezed into the scene on roller skates and took a hard fall on the street not included in the director's script—but it registered. More laughs from the crowd as a police officer rushed up to arrest the driver of the overturned car. The cub reporter, Howard White, followed the officer and got enough information for a story.

OWN LITTLE SHOW

Director Newland staged his own little show preliminary to taking the scene in giving orders as to just how it should be done. He went through the antics of the country flapper and wobbled from the wreck with dilated eyes and bearing an automobile tire across his shoulders.

It was the first time one of Circleville's thriving business centers had been turned into a Hollywood lot. Director Newland knew his job, for the crowd expressed approval. The automobile wreck scenes will probably be the biggest and best in the production.

Today has been a busy one. At 1:30 a. m. a scene in the picture of children between the ages of 5 and 12 was made at the Court House.

GLAD THEY HATCHED

DAVENPORT, Ia.—Laborers on a construction project were much relieved when three baby robins were hatched. They had watched for the event with interest, because the mother robin had chosen as the place for her nest a 50-foot boom of a crane being used on the project.

Proud to show visitors our spotless factories

YOU like to know that the foods you eat are made under sanitary conditions. That's why we are always delighted to have people see "where Kellogg's Corn Flakes are made."

We have thousands of visitors, every year, who take home with them a picture of sunlit kitchens, gleaming machinery, employees in fresh white uniforms . . . of cleanliness and care for quality. If you ever come to Battle Creek we hope you'll stop and see us.

You'll know then why W. K. Kellogg makes this unconditional guarantee: "If you don't think Kellogg's the best and freshest corn flakes you ever tasted, return the empty red-and-green package and we will cheerfully refund your money."

called to order at 2:30 o'clock by the president, Mrs. Dennis H.
Dreisbach, secretary read the minutes of the previous meeting and called the roll finding twenty-five members and visitors present. During the short business session the president appointed Miss Carrie Umsted, Mrs. James Leist and Mrs. Edgar Hassenpflug, a committee to name officers for the coming year will be held on Labor Day
September 5. Miss Carrie Umsted read a very interesting paper discussing "Animals and Insects, friends in our Gardens." Mrs. Ray
F. Moomaw, visitor from Chillicothe, in a very charming manner discussed the "Gardens and Flowers of Porto Rico." Mrs. Moomaw lived for three years in Porto Rico and is well able to discuss this most interesting possession of the United States. Her talk was most informative and interesting. Flowers, that we prize as rare specimen, grow rankly wild and are considered as pests. The flora of the island is of gorgeous coloring and all of the homes, however poor have their gardens. The club greatly appreciated this splendid talk by Mrs. Moomaw. The next meeting will be held at the home of Miss Carrie Umsted. During the social hour Mrs. Leist served dainty refreshments of sandwiches, nut bread and pimiento, iced tea and coffee. She was assisted by Mrs.
Jane Leist, Mrs. Margaret Dalbey and Mrs. Fannie Baker.

Changes in Congress

CONGRESS has been in a state of flux for several years and is due for several more important changes next November. When the next convenes some of the familiar faces will be missing and new ones will have taken their place.

Senator Brookhart of Iowa, and Senator Morrison, of North Carolina, lost their seats at the spring primaries. Senator Hawes, of Missouri, will not run for reelection. And among the 17 Republican and 15 Democratic senators whose seats will be at stake in November several are far from certain of reelection.

Several members of the upper branch whose return term is a matter of course are said to be fighting for their seats this year. Senator Broussard, of Louisiana, is slated for the discard by "Kingfish" Long. Former Senator Heflin will probably oppose Senator Black in Alabama, and "Coley" Blease is after the seat of Senator Smith, of South Carolina.

Nor do senatorial crowns rest easy upon all Republican heads. Smoot, of Utah is worried. Shortridge, of California; Moses, of New Hampshire, and Bingham, of Connecticut, have far from easy sailing, and Blaine, of Wisconsin, may be swept out by a possible anti-La Follette landslide. In Indiana, Senator Watson has good reason for not forgetting his close shave in 1926.

As for the younger senators of both parties who are coming up to re-election this year, all are unfortunate in their choice of years for the expiration of their first terms. Political weather is threatening and uncertain this year.

All of which points to a powerful lot of patching and building of political fences during the next three months.

Demand Overtakes Supply
DURING the steady rise in hog prices pork rose in Chicago from the lowest price in 35 years to prices that brought a smile of satisfaction to farmers and traders alike and gave the country its first ray of hope in many moons.

The marked advance in hog prices and improvement in cattle quotations set up a breeze which the Middle West hailed as a trade wind and which to other sections was a soothing and refreshing zephyr.

Meat price gains provide the most heartening business signs since the beginning of the depression from the viewpoint of growers, bankers, retail and mail-order business, and transportation, for they are to the agricultural states what steel and other industrial barometers are to the East.

The rise in meat prices was not the work of black magic. Production was curtailed until a shortage existed when the law of supply and demand operated to boost prices to a point permitting a margin of profit. The same thing happened in the textile industry and put many thousands of men and women to work in New England woolen mills in the last fortnight. Nor is the present situation in the stock market far removed. In all three instances conditions were ripe for a change for the better.

Steel will do the same thing when inventories have been reduced to a minimum and the demand for steel catches up with the supply. And later on, when the railroads and other industries must begin buying and a housing shortage will develop. After all, this depression was largely the inevitable result of flagrant violations of the law of supply and demand. And this applies to virtually every line of human endeavor.

Little Fellow Buys

NONE guarantee that the higher prices will endure and go higher came with the current rise in stock values but if the resultant improvement in public morale and confidence counts for anything the bear market sounded its death rattle more than a week ago.

Everybody anticipates a succession of advances and relapses until conditions return to normal, and plans on the theory that each new crest will be a little higher than the last and each new "low" a little less low than that preceding.

These recent market gains were not manufactured by pools, but were the natural harvest from the return to the market of thousands of small investors. The large number of transactions reflect the popular verdict that the market had reached the bottom and that the time has come to buy, which means there has been a re-birth of public confidence and that the old sock has been taken from under the mattress.

One of two things must happen if the ground gained is subsequently lost; either a powerful

CHAPTER THIRTY-EIGHT

The truth was that Lily Lou, who had been unused to change, had had so much of it in the last six months that she was beginning to accept it as a perfectly natural part of life.

There was the landing at Liverpool, a sort of spotless town, all laid out in orderly buildings, all as much alike as possible, and lunch in a big and rather cheerless hotel with Madame Nahman inclined to pace the floor and buttonhole clerks and managers because there was no mail for her, and someone who was supposed to have met her had failed to arrive.

Grumbling, she decided to go back to the station. There was a short ride through green English country, in one of those queer European trains with seats for six in a compartment, and a corridor along one side. Then London. A London of immense, stone station, decorative British policemen majestically ordering a very British traffic, a cold, damp rain, and then two nights in a rather chilly hotel. During that time she saw Madame Nahman, whose room was on another floor, just once.

At that time she kissed Lily Lou fondly, called her her own darling little companion, and told her that she couldn't have borne two days in this frightful, depressing place without her. Then she disappeared, not to appear again until it was time to take the train for Southampton, and then a night boat to Le Havre, where a certain Mademoiselle Susanne Coin, maid and companion, was to be picked up.

Then she appeared only long enough to tell Lily Lou to go on alone, she had decided to make the Folkestone-Boulogne crossing after all, and would meet her in Paris at the Ritz, day after tomorrow, "and here's 10 pounds, dear; this should do you, and don't forget to look for Susanne when the boat docks at Le Havre. She's tall, fair, rather English type. You can't miss her—she speaks English."

A little bewildered, a little thrilled to be traveling alone, Lily Lou started, somewhat hampered by all of Nahman's luggage, as well as her own.

At the boat there was some misunderstanding about her reservation. Madame Nahman had cancelled, . . . no, there was nothing for Miss Lansing. Sorry, but the state-rooms were all engaged. However, she could have a berth in the women's cabin.

After a look at the women's cabin, a stuffy, dismal looking place, overcrowded already, she climbed up on deck, and sat there wrapped in blankets until the boat started. Then, seasick again, she groped her way back to the cabin she had despised before, and east herself down on top of one of the vacant berths.

In the morning the ship was anchored at the pier on the French side, and the channel looked calm as a millpond. The air was fresh and clean, the sky was blue. The night was just a bad dream.

Bustle of leaving. Customs. Officials. But no Susanne Coin. Lily Lou missed the Paris train, waiting and looking for her. An English-speaking gentleman, who turned out to be awaiting a party of tourists whom he was going to guide through Paris and on to Marseilles, where someone else would whisk them on to Algiers, advised Lily Lou to go over to a hotel within walking distance of the boat, and have some breakfast.

In the lobby an immense wooden bowl, covered with wire netting, attracted her eye. It proved to contain a quantity of lettuce leaves, and hundreds of small black snails, contentedly nibbling.

She decided against breakfast. Went out and stood on the street in front of the hotel. Two French sailors, their red-pompadour blue caps set on at a rakish angle, paused in their promenade to eye her with interest.

She went back into the hotel. She was hungry, anyway. In the dining room, sipping chocolate and reading a newspaper, she saw a pleasant faced blonde young woman who might answer to her description of Susanne Coin.

It was Susanne, and she was delighted to learn that she would have company to Paris, and agitated to think that she had not met the boat, but she had not known that Miss Lansing would be on it!

Lily Lou didn't argue the point. She was getting used to people making a fuss over you one minute and forgetting you the next.

So Susanne had another cup of chocolate with Lily Lou. "Never try to drink French coffee, it's vile," she advised her, countermarching Lily Lou's request for coffee.

Acquiescent as usual, Lily Lou drank the chocolate and let her new friend take charge of the luggage. On the train they had a compartment all to themselves and Susanne took off her hat and her blue coat, and slipped out of her frivolous high-heeled shoes, gratefully twisting her toes—an action which Lily Lou was to associate forever with France. French travelers, it seemed, removed their shoes as naturally and quickly as they did their hats.

"I am Swiss. And you?"

"American. I came from the States with Madame Nahman, to study."

"Ah, yes, from New York. I have a sister there. She is married . . ." Susanne was off on a long, detailed history of her sister, her sister's health, and her husband.

Lily Lou let her talk. She thought about London, and the few things she had managed to see. St. Paul's, Westminster, Bond Street, The Parliament buildings. And that was about all.

And now she was in France, on a French train, on her way to Paris. Susanne had stopped talking about her sister. She was saying that since Madame would not arrive until Friday, she thought she'd go on to visit another sister at Passy, and she'd be at the Ritz in time to unpack for Madame.

"And should I go on to the Ritz?"

"Or would it be better if I went somewhere less expensive?"

Susanne Coin eyed her companion speculatively. The black coat that did not fit very well, the ringless hands, the inexpensive hat.

"There are cheaper places. You might go to the Grand Hotel Grivv—that's cheap," she said. "I knew an English woman who stayed there once."

They shook hands.

She was just the acquaintance of a few hours, but Lily Lou felt very much alone when she went off, with a light-hearted wave of a yellow gloved hand.

"Grand Hotel Grivv," she told the whiskered and taciturn taxi-driver into whose ramshackle vehicle her luggage was being placed.

He stared at her for several moments, then motioned for her to get in.

The motor started. They lurched off in the dusk of the cold, wintry evening.

There was a time, much later, when Lily Lou was to love Paris. A Paris of lights, and laughter, of gaiety and beauty. The horse-chestnuts abloom in the Bois, the great French dressmakers, with their exotic manikins, their breath-taking display of wealth and beauty, the little perfume and jewelry shops on the Rue de Rivoli, the magazines where linen and lace were displayed in liveliness. A Paris of cafes and parties, of theaters and fashion and gay camaraderie on the left bank of the Seine.

But she did not love it now. The cold of a wet November chilled her to the bone. The Grand Hotel Grivv was an ancient vault of a place back of the Opera, with sagging floors, damp smelling velvet hangings, and vast, unclean beds.

"With bath" she read on the letter-heads. But she never found the bath. Nobody could tell her where it was, or how to make the necessary reservations for hot water. On the second day, determined to track down that bathroom, she wandered from door to door and from floor to floor, and finally on the top floor she found a door with no number. Boldly she opened it. A bearded gentleman of large proportions, attired in a red flannel undershirt and sagging blue trousers, was sitting on the edge of a bed, eating bread and cheese.

He looked up sleepily, and slowly showed his teeth in a broad, welcoming smile. Lily Lou banged the door shut without even stopping to beg his pardon, and fled down three flights of winding, narrow stairs to her own room.

At the table d'hôte that evening she hardly dared look up from her plate. She was afraid of seeing the bearded man.

When Madame Nahman arrived, not on Friday, but on Monday, at the Ritz, Lily Lou moved over there, and had a cot in the dressing room adjoining Nahman's boudoir.

At least it was warm there, and there was a bath. Susanne Coin, the maid, bobbed in and out, silent and efficient. She was more company than Nahman. Nahman was always dressing to go out somewhere, and someone was always calling to see her. Men mostly. Men who wore striped trousers and longtailed coats, and handed stick and gloves to Susanne as they came in the door. But a few of the callers were women. Tall, angular women, mostly. Women with black gowns, a great many pearls and diamonds, and immense fur coats.

Start This Season to Prevent Next Year's Hay Fever—Never Give Up!

Vaccine Injections of the Substance to Which You Are Sensitive May Turn the Trick; But in Any Case See the Doctor and Let Him Study Your Trouble

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

IN summer and autumn cases of hay fever are all too common. This annoying and distressing disease afflicting thousands of people. Progress has been made in the treatment and relief of hay fever, but unfortunately the number of sufferers has increased. The attacks are not unlike attacks of asthma. They are traced to a sensitivity to certain proteins that may be in the food, in the clothing or housefurnishings, or they may come from animals about the house.

Every factor in the sensitivity must be studied before a cure can be expected. The substance which causes the attack may be determined by certain skin tests. Sufferers from hay fever complain of itching and congestion of the eyes when exposed to the offending pollens, which are produced by the common trees, grasses and ragweeds.

The afflicted person has violent attacks of sneezing; there is a thin and irritating discharge from the nose; the inside of the mouth itches, and there is a desire to rub the eyes. These symptoms are usually worse in the morning, and they vary in

Theatres

AT THE CLIFTONA

The beautiful town of Dothan, Alabama, points with pride to Johnny Mack Brown. The hero of Paramount's feature picture, "The Vanishing Frontier," coming Friday and Saturday to the Cliftona Theater, was born there.

Good-looking, thoughtful-minded, and strong as a horse (he tackled one on a bet in "The Last Flight") Johnny gained fame in his native state five or six years ago, as one of Alabama's greatest football heroes. He worked his way through college as a clerk in a haberdashery.

AT THE GRAND

Your last chance to be tickled to Sidney and Charlie Murray as they "tear" by the antics of George out-Hollywood Hollywood will be tonight, when "Cohens and Kelleys in Hollywood" close its run at the Grand Theater.

Theatre patrons are admitting their sides are truly sore from laughing at the exhilarating gambols of the famous comedy pair as they attack the film capital in search of fame and fortune, in the seventh annual appearance of "Cohen" and "Kelley."

The picture runs with sparkling vigor, and audiences that have already witnessed it have called it the outstanding achievement in mirth. Sidney and Murray have done. The supporting cast is a brilliant one, headed by June Clyde and Norman Foster, with Emma Dunn, Esther Foster, Dorothy Christy, Luis Alberni, Edwin Maxwell, John Roche, Robert Greig and Eileen Percy. John Francis Dillon directed this uproarious comedy. Don't miss this hilarious tonic for the blues.

Hope For Proposed Ohio Canal High After St. Lawrence Treaty Is Signed

COLUMBUS, Aug. 4.—New hope for the long-proposed Lake-Erie-Ohio river canal has resulted from the new treaty between the United States and Canada providing for improvement of the St. Lawrence river to enable ocean liners to reach the Great Lakes.

Prof. C. E. Sherman, of Ohio State university, member of the Ohio water conservation commission, is authority for that statement.

If the Mississippi river system were connected with the Great Lakes, and navigable waters flowed from the lakes to the Atlantic, the heart of the middle west, the world, would be opened for faster internal trade and joined by waterways to all the ports of the Atlantic, Sherman says.

SANDUSKY-PORTSMOUTH

As head of the university's department of civil engineering and member of the Ohio Water Conservation Board, Professor Sherman believes the canal should extend from Sandusky through Columbus to Portsmouth.

From a national standpoint, his reasons are: First, that a canal through central Ohio would connect the nation's greatest coking and coal deposits in West Virginia with the ore deposits of the lakes region, and second, it is the shortest water way between the largest number of cities—all those of the Mississippi system and those in the lakes and coastal regions.

The canal would cross the divide at the lowest level possible in the state while the topography is such that water from more than 2,000 square miles could be collected.

USE TWO RIVERS

In addition, the Sandusky and Scioto rivers extend to within 10 miles of each other in central Ohio. The two rivers slackwatered would provide a wider channel than would a canal section.

Three other available routes for the canal have serious objections, Sherman believes. If the canal extended from Pittsburgh to Youngstown to Ashtabula, the channel would be restricted because of railways along its banks. The coal deposits of Pennsylvania are limited in reserve and not suitable for coking, so that the connection of these fields with the ore regions might eventually be futile, he says.

Should the canal run from Cleveland through Akron to Marietta, by way of the Muskingum river, or from Toledo through Dayton down the Miami river section serious engineering problems such as insufficient water supply and a large number of bridges crossing the canal must be met. A canal must have a ready water supply and provide enough water for local use at the same time, Sherman says.

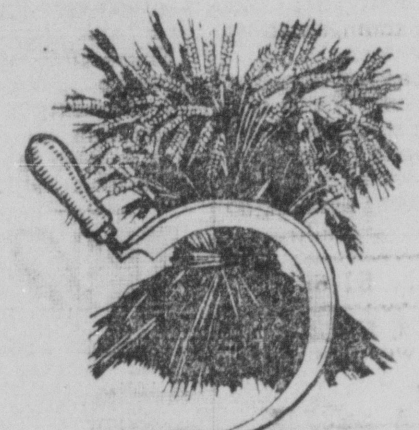

A waterway through central Ohio would be important because two large lakes could be constructed at the summit of its course which would guard against drought as well as facilitate traffic on the canal. Prof. Sherman states. Water conservation is one of Ohio's biggest problems, and several lakes must be constructed for water even if the canal is not built.

TEA ROOM MOVES

Hanley's Tea Room, which has occupied a room on W. Main-st. for the past seven years, has been moved to the J. R. Wilson building at 112 E. Main-st. and will be open for business on Friday.

In the new location the tea room is equipped to serve Club meetings and Bridge parties as the second floor room in the building is ideal for such affairs.

Their formal opening will be held on Saturday with a special lunch with favors for all who attend.

The Daily Horoscope Thursday, August 4, 1932

Planetary aspects today are not considered favorable. The planet Mercury begins to retrograde with its relation to the earth, and continues so until the 28th of this month, during which time one's mental process is likely to be disturbed, tending to make people somewhat forgetful and careless. Appointments are likely to be made, but disregarded and cancelled.

Confusion will prevail in the handling of mail. Care should be exercised in addressing and signing letters, etc. The mass mind is not working along its orderly course and many will fail to pay attention to details.

Those in the lecture field are likely to be disappointed in the arrangement of their program the details of the plans may not be carried satisfactorily.

Young folks attending the summer schools are not likely to progress during this period, because of difficulty in concentrating on their studies. Attendants of children in the libraries, especially will find difficulty in keeping order.

Those tabulating sheets for the races and ball-games may also find themselves lacking in concentration.

Persons born between the 12th and 22nd of August, November, February, and May, will be restless and impatient; the mind is likely to be disturbed by lack of system and the breaking of promises.

Children born on this day will be lacking in concentration, and be drawn to the unconventional.

The Duchess of York was born on this date in 1900; also Bertha Von Hillern, 1857, artist and reformer celebrated it as a birthday.

CLUB PICTON

About thirty-four members and guests assembled on the lawn of Christ's Lutheran church, Tuesday evening, for the church's annual picnic. Everyone enjoyed a bountiful supper and the remainder of the evening spent in various games.

MRS. REID IS CLUB HOSTESS

Two tables of bridge were assembled at the home of Mrs. Ray P. Reid of W. Corwin-st. Wednesday evening, when she was hostess to members of her club.

A pleasant evening was spent at the card tables and at the close of the interesting diversion, delicious refreshments were served by the hostess. Favors in the game were awarded Mrs. John Ward, Miss Lillian Young and Mrs. Russell Miller.

In two weeks the club will meet with Mrs. Walter Potts of W. Mound-st.

PAUKY HONORS 9TH BIRTHDAY

Honoring the ninth birthday anniversary of their niece, Betty Sapp of Bainbridge, who has been spending the summer here, Mrs. Nell Phillips, Mrs. John Boggs and Mrs. Frank Lynch entertained at a charming party at the former's home on W. Mound-st. Wednesday afternoon.

Thirteen small guests were assembled for the pleasant affair and enjoyed the afternoon spent in games for which prizes were awarded Betty Sapp and Bobby Kline. Tempting refreshments were served at a prettily decorated table centered with a pink birthday cake and candles.

Guests included Betty Sapp, Lloyd and Nelson Jones, Laura-gene Cook, John and Margaret Boggs, Charles Will, Earl Wallace, Bobby Goeller, Bobby Kline, Barton Denning, Jr., Dorothy Reid and Junior Geib.

Soil were touring nearby towns searching jails for Nash.

TELLS WHOLE STORY

Nash broke down after hours of intermittent grilling, when he decided to confess. He told his story calmly, according to Sheriff Colyer, and acted relieved when it was complete.

"I met Evelyn Sanford on the road Saturday night near the place you found in the swamp where it looked like a struggle took place.

"I passed her and then I turned around and tried to put my arm around her. She pushed me away and said something about stopping I got mad then and hit her with my fist in the face."

The girl's right cheek showed that a blow of the sort described was struck.

"She fell on the road and then didn't get up. I waited a minute and got scared. When she didn't move after a couple of minutes I rolled her off the road down into the swamp. I felt her pulse there and decided she was dead." (The girl was not dead at that time, the coroner's report showed.)

COVERED HEAD

"I wanted to be sure about it, so I went over to my place (about 150 feet from the swamp) and got a burlap bag and a piece of cord. I tied the cord around her neck real tight and put the bag over her head because I didn't like to look at her face."

"Then I went back across the street and I took a two wheeled cart from the barn. I got the shovel there, too. I loaded her into the cart and took her over to the house behind mine, then I shoved her through an open window in the basement and went in after her and shoveled a hole—not a very deep one—and buried her there."

"That story about Evelyn screaming was all wrong. She didn't have a chance to yell."

ANSWERS QUESTIONS

The sheriff said Nash answered several questions put to him by himself, the prosecutor, Peter Von Sprecken and State Police Capt. Earl Hathaway. No record was kept of who asked the questions.

Q. "Did anyone else help you in any way in this affair?"

A. "Absolutely no one."

Q. "Are you willing to plead guilty to first degree murder?"

A. "Yes, I killed her."

Q. "Do you want to change your story now about those scratches on your face? Weren't they made in your struggle with her?"

A. "No, sir. I told the truth about that, anyway. I got them when I fell cutting a limb out of a tree in back of my place."

Sheriff Colyer announced late last night that the case will be rushed through the court in one day if possible.

"As soon as we get a few hours sleep," the sheriff said, "we will have Nash brought here. We will locate Judge Hal Cutler (Circuit Court Judge for the section) and have this man on his way to life in jail before tomorrow night (tonight)."

'Paper' Manager Is Second Best

COLUMBUS, Aug. 4.—William H. Crane, out of jail on bond here awaiting arrival of Canton police who want him on a criminal libel charge, today had come off second best in his encounter with Grover Fleming, publisher of a weekly newspaper.

Crane, seeking to recover $462.70 he alleged was due him as back wages, complained to municipal authorities who seized copies of this week's edition of the Ohio Examiner.

Fleming, in turn, caused Crane's arrest by revealing to local police that Crane was wanted in Canton.

Crane later was released on bond. The seized papers were also returned to Fleming.

The former said he was former manager of the paper and that Fleming owed him and his wife the amount as salary from March 24 to July 30.

pede of Legionnaires to the camp demanding immediate payment.

There was no secret about the chief executive's hurried trip to Detroit. At that time he appealed to the legionnaires as "patriotic citizens" to stand by the government and not force the outlay of $2,000,000,000 from the national treasury.

15,000 IN CAMP

"There will be 15,000 ex-soldiers at the meeting in Toledo, August 14," Herbert said. "And I am sure that everyone of them will adopt the same attitude as I am expressing."

"In the first place," he continued, "An enormous number of war veterans are destitute. Secondly, release of such a large sum would help the return of prosperity and the payment of debts such as long overdue house rentals, doctor bills and grocery bills."

'Paper' Manager Is Second Best

COLUMBUS, Aug. 4.—William H. Crane, out of jail on bond here awaiting arrival of Canton police who want him on a criminal libel charge, today had come off second best in his encounter with Grover Fleming, publisher of a weekly newspaper.

Crane, seeking to recover $462.70 he alleged was due him as back wages, complained to municipal authorities who seized copies of this week's edition of the Ohio Examiner.

Fleming, in turn, caused Crane's arrest by revealing to local police that Crane was wanted in Canton.

Crane later was released on bond. The seized papers were also returned to Fleming.

The former said he was former manager of the paper and that Fleming owed him and his wife the amount as salary from March 24 to July 30.

WATER PLANT

In every fire of any importance here in the past number of years, including the disastrous Straw-board fire two years ago and the Goeller broom factory fire previous to that, lack of water pressure has been the cause of exorbitant loss, officials claim.

TO STUDY PROBLEM

Councilman Clark Will suggested that engineers of the Ohio bureau of inspection look over the local situation and advise as to what pressure should be maintained here at all time. Mr. Clark agreed to have engineers of his company meet with the inspection bureau engineer to go over the situation.

In the offer made by Mr. Clark to council in which approximately $800 per year would be saved by the city on fire hydrants it is specified that a pressure of 40 pounds be maintained at all times. This phrase in the offer has council in arms.

Mr. Clark is again expected to be here when council convenes on Aug. 17.
